John Woodruff Sr. Joins the Hill & Co. Woodruff-Miller Team

San Francisco, CA – November 29, 2007 – The name is familiar but the team member is brand new. John Woodruff Sr. recently joined his son John L. Woodruff III and Marcus Miller to form a now three-person group focusing on residential and commercial real estate in San Francisco.

The Woodruff-Miller Team (woodruff-miller.com) has been in place at Hill & Co. for seven years, the evolution of a successful practice established in 1987. Together, they have forged an enviable track record of success, and established a strong reputation for comprehensive market knowledge and superior service.

John Sr., a former Director of the San Francisco Association of Realtors, has been in real estate for more than 35 years. He introduced his son to the business, and for more than 10 years was a broker/investor in Park City, Utah.

John Sr. has held senior positions with companies across the country. In addition to his position in Park City, he was a Senior Investment Broker with Merrill Lynch Commercial Real Estate in San Francisco, Regional Vice President for Previews Inc. in New York, New England, Eastern Canada and Special Properties Director for Land Vest in Boston.

“My father brings an extraordinary breadth of knowledge to our team,” said John III. “He will be a wonderful asset for all of us. His success, energy and approach to the business inspired me to get into real estate twenty years ago. I am delighted to now be working side-by-side with him.”

In addition to fine homes, hospitality and investment properties, John Sr. has marketed some very unique properties – from islands off the coast of New England to college campuses and ski resorts. Past clients include the Kennedy family, the Rockefellers, corporate celebrities and national developers.

Hill & Co.
